PLANNING & INFRASTRUCTURE

Building for the future

Uncertainty is one of the few certainties of life, yet it has reached a greater pitch today than ever before.

Climate change, population pressures, a connected community, the pace of innovation and a fluid economic picture add complexity to planning for the future.

In the hotspot is major infrastructure, which both shapes our environmental impact and is itself shaped by environmental pressures.

In September we'll be looking at the environmental and social issues, challenges and best practice when it comes to planning for infrastructure development.
